This class will meet for 22.5 hours in total for the semester. Public speaking in one's first language, let alone second language, can be a nerve-wracking experience. The primary purpose of this course is to give students a great deal of guided practice in developing this skill for their future careers. Students will work through a variety of activities to help them develop their ability to use spoken English to both inform ideas, and convey their own ideas and professional activities to others through presentation.
